DEC Accepting Applications for Pheasant Release Program

New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) Commissioner Basil Seggos announced that applications are available for DEC's cooperative Day-Old Pheasant Chick Program. The program provides pheasant hunting opportunities through a partnership among DEC, hunters, 4-H youth, and interested landowners.

The Day-Old Pheasant Chick Program began in the early 1900s. At that time, the state Conservation Department (which became DEC) distributed pheasant eggs and chicks to farmers and rural youth, and DEC continues that tradition to this day. Day-old chicks are available at no cost to participants who can provide a brooding facility, a covered outdoor rearing pen, and an adequate release site. Approved applicants will receive the day-old chicks in April, May, or June. No chicks obtained through the Day-Old Pheasant Chick Program can be released on private shooting preserves and all release sites must be approved in advance by DEC and must be open for public pheasant hunting opportunities. The program is funded through the State Conservation Fund from license fees paid by hunters, trappers, and anglers.

Applicants must provide daily care to the rapidly growing chicks, monitor the birds' health and ensure they have adequate feed and water. The pheasants may be released beginning when they are eight weeks old and must be released no later than Dec. 1. Individuals interested in these programs

(StatePoint) Indigestion is on the rise worldwide and is especially prevalent in the U.S. According to the American College of Gastroenterology, 60 million Americans suffer from heartburn at least once a month. While it’s a common issue for older people due to aging, it’s now a growing problem for younger adults as well, who report increasing bouts of indigestion, upset stomach, and anxious stomach, which may be linked to stress and hectic lifestyles

“When the acid in your stomach rises into your esophagus, that’s when you know you have heartburn,” says Dr. Ken Redcross, a board-certified physician in internal medicine and author of “Bond: The 4 Cornerstones of a Lasting and Caring Relationship with Your Doctor.” He explains that heartburn is more than just a minor discomfort, and it can impact daily life. “Heartburn can cause chest pain, difficulty swallowing, and even interfere with sleep. While there are many contributing factors, whatever the cause, it’s uncomfortable and important to manage.”

Suffering from indigestion and heartburn? Dr. Redcross recommends a few simple measures that may help you find relief.

- When embarking on a new diet to improve health and wellness, the last thing you may expect to suffer from are digestive issues. But a sudden change to one’s diet is frequently the source of heartburn. Keto diets in particular can trigger heartburn as the diet requires upping the intake of fat, which takes longer to leave the stomach. If you are starting a new diet, it can be helpful to change your diet more gradually.
- Indigestion from travel is common, as being away from home often means eating unfamiliar foods and keeping odd hours. When on the go, (or all the time) stick mostly with tried-and-true foods you know that sit well, attempt to keep a regular eating schedule, and wear loose, comfortable clothing.
- Eating too fast or too much can also contribute to indigestion. Slow down and savor your food. Also, consider consuming smaller portions at a time.
- Try to incorporate some movement into your daily routine, particularly after meals, as lying down directly after eating can be a source of indigestion. Exercise can also help you maintain a healthy weight, which is another important factor in managing indigestion.
- Know your triggers. For some, certain foods like citrus, spices, fatty food, and alcoholic or caffeinated beverages can trigger symptoms. Knowing your specific triggers can help you avoid them.
- Be prepared to address symptoms when they strike. Indigestion sufferers with a bloated or upset stomach can find plant-based relief with travel-friendly Boiron Acidil tablets that melt in your mouth without water. Easy to take before or after a meal, they work with the body to target occasional heartburn, acid indigestion, bloating, or upset stomach. This homeopathic medicine can help get your body back into balance naturally. Claims for Acidil are based on traditional homeopathic practice, not accepted medical evidence. They are not FDA evaluated. More information about Acidil and other homeopathic medicines for gastrointestinal relief can be found by visiting BoironUSA.com/digestives.

For a happy, healthy belly, learn your indigestion triggers and be prepared to manage symptoms.

How to Improve Your Financial Health in 2020

(StatePoint) The first months of the year are a great time to build a plan to achieve your financial health goals. Here are some tips to help you get started:

Check your credit reports

To start building your plan, it’s important to know where you stand. Checking your credit reports regularly is a good first step, as your credit health is an important part of your overall financial wellness. You can get a free credit report from each of the three nationwide credit reporting agencies every year at annualcreditreport.com. You may also want to consider signing up for a credit monitoring service like TransUnion Credit Monitoring. Many credit monitoring services alert you to any report changes as they happen, so they can be a smart addition to your plan to build and maintain your credit health.

Once you’ve reviewed your credit report, along with your other financial information, it can seem overwhelming to know what to do next. But you don’t need to make big changes to have a big impact over time. Two common starting points are paying down debt and building a savings account.

Pay down debt

If you have credit card debt, you’re far from alone. The average credit card balance is $5,668, according to a recent TransUnion Industry Insights Report. Paying down debt can help lift what feels like a huge financial burden and reduce stress around major life decisions. Take control by creating an actionable plan and good, consistent habits, like making all payments on time with at least the minimum payment. After budgeting for all minimum payments, focus on an account to pay a little more on if you can. Some people like to focus on the account with the highest interest rate, while others choose the one with the lowest balance. Do what makes you comfortable and will motivate you to stick with your plan. Before making any investment or financial decisions, you should consult a qualified attorney or financial advisor.

An added benefit to paying down debt is that it can help your credit health. As you pay off credit card balances, it will decrease your credit utilization, which is a big factor in your credit scores. Combine this with your consistent, on-time monthly payments, and you’ll have built a strong foundation for healthier credit. For more tips on building your credit health, follow TransUnion on Instagram.

Build your savings account

As you make progress in paying off debts, consider creating a savings goal. Schedule consistent automatic transfers to your savings account if you can, even if it’s a small amount at first. It may not seem like much, but simply having a plan you’re taking action on will help you feel more confident about your financial future. Over time, your balance will grow, and you’ll enjoy more freedom and flexibility to handle life’s milestones.

Everyone is at a different place on their financial journey. What’s most important is to make a thoughtful, realistic plan and practice your new habits consistently. Hiccups may happen, but sticking with your plan will help you reach your credit and financial goals.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY SEEKS CEMETERY TOUR PLAYERS

The Historical Society of the Town of Middletown is looking for local players to portray several former residents at its 8th Living History Cemetery Tour to be held Saturday, June 20, 2020 at Margaretville Cemetery.

Five men and four women will be cast to give short presentations to tour goers. A variety of non-speaking roles will also be available for at-large players appearing in silent vignettes throughout the cemetery.

Stories to be told at this year's event include the heroic actions of a local Air Force pilot; the efforts of a Hungarian immigrant to keep her family together on the farm after her husband's early death; the musings of a 19th century lamplighter in 1890s Margaretville and the achievement of Delaware County's first female attorney.

The tour audience will hear about the scandalous fall from grace of an Anti-Rent War hero; the fruitless search for a missing Civil War veteran by his comrade, and the public battle between a prominent local man and his third wife over, you guessed it, money.

Among the at-large players will be a pair of devoted sisters who converse in sign language, a young Civil mental Conservation (DEC) Commissioner Basil Seggos today announced the adoption of a regulation to reduce problems caused by wildlife feeding and establish strict procedures for the use of tick-control devices designed to treat deer. Prohibiting the feeding of wild deer and moose is a best management approach to reduce risks associated with communicable wildlife diseases like chronic wasting disease, minimize conflicts with deer, and protect wildlife habitat.

"Feeding deer and moose can artificially increase populations and change behavior, causing harm to people, wildlife, and the environment," Commissioner Seggos said. "These new requirements strike a necessary balance between preventing the negative effects of deer feeding while recognizing the increased public health threat posed by tick-borne diseases and make an exception to allow the use of certain devices designed to kill ticks on deer."

DEC first prohibited deer feeding in 2002 in response to the threat of Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) because concentrating deer or moose at feeding sites increases the risk of disease transmission. However, there are many other negative impacts associated with deer feeding that necessitate a broader regulation.

Following a public comment period earlier this year, DEC adopted the new regulation to provide a clearer definition of what does and does not constitute illegal feeding of deer or moose. For example, the requirements provide exemptions for wildlife plantings, bona fide agricultural practices, live-stock husbandry, and research and nuisance abatement actions permitted by DEC. It clarifies that incidental feeding such as the attraction of deer or moose to a birdfeeder will only be considered a violation if DEC has previously issued a written warning to the person responsible for the incidental feeding. This will allow nuisance situations to be appropriately addressed without limiting bird feeding in general.

To reduce the sale and marketing of products that are illegal to use and to protect consumers from being misled, the new regulation requires retail products packaged for sale as food or edible attractants for wild deer or moose to carry a label clearly stating that such use is illegal in New York.

The regulation also establishes procedures for the legal use of 4-Poster™ Tickicide and devices used to dispense it. 4-Poster™ Tickicide is a pesticide registered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and DEC to kill ticks on deer. It is dispensed via four rollers, or "posts," attached to bait stations filled with corn. As deer eat the corn, the rollers deposit pesticide on their heads and necks. In parts of New York with high tick-borne disease rates, there is considerable public interest in using these devices. The application procedures and permit issuance conditions specified in the new regulation are designed to allow such use while limiting negative impacts of deer feeding on the surrounding community and environment.

CALL FOR VENDORS

The Auxiliary of Margaretville Hospital and Mountainside Residential Care Center announces its 52nd Annual Antique, Craft & Flea Market, returning this year by popular request. The event will take place Saturday, Aug. 8, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in The Village Park, behind Fresh-town Supermarket in Margaretville. Continuing a tradition that spans over five decades, this year the Flea Market is being revamped to include a variety of assorted merchandise from antiques and collectibles to dollar store items. Spaces are available in the park (25' x 15') and in the Pavilion (16' x 8'). The fee per vendor is $40. If a vendor needs more than a 25' x 15' space, they will be charged an additional $40. Vendors will be allowed to retain their vehicles at their space, except those located in the Pavilion. The set-up time starts at 6 a.m. Live music will be performed throughout the day. Refreshments include burgers, hot dogs, chicken, assorted baked goods, soda, water, and coffee. To reserve a spot, please contact Sue Adams at 845-586-1175 or randyadams52@catskill.net, or Kathy Roberts at either 845-586-1800 ext.3304 or 607-326-4136 by phone, or via email at Kathryn.Roberts@hahv.org or kkroberts@catskill.net. You may download a contract form and the field layout at <http://www.margaretvillehospitalauxiliary.com/flea-market.html>. Please, fill in and return with your check. Make checks payable to the Margaretville Hospital Auxiliary. Registration deadline is May 15, 2020. All vendors are encouraged to mark their first three choices on the map enclosed with the contract. All proceeds go to the Mountainside Residential Care Center. The Auxiliary of Margaretville Hospital and Mountainside Residential Care Center promotes and advances the welfare of the Hospital and the Residential Care Center through outreach, advocacy and fundraising. Learn more at margaretvillehospitalauxiliary.com.
