Del Co Announces COVID-19 Vaccination Information

The Delaware County Board of Supervisors announced that they are working with New York state, local health care providers and local pharmacies to administer as many COVID-19 vaccinations each week as they can.

Each authorized group that can provide vaccinations receives a limited supply of vaccine each week. To date, Delaware County Public Health has vaccinated 613 people and will continue to vaccinate 1B essential workers. Beginning the week of Feb. 15, public health will also be vaccinating people 65 and older with comorbidities. People over the age 65 can call the Delaware County Office for the Aging at 607-832-5750 to schedule an appointment at a Public Health Clinic. Vaccines will also continue to be available for people over 65 at pharmacies and state mass vaccination sites.

Hospitals and state run mass vaccination sites are also accepting appointments for individuals with comorbidities beginning Feb. 15. Pharmacies have been designated to vaccinate residents 65 and older throughout the country. They are distributed directly to the pharmacies from the federal government and are not included in the state distribution plan. CVS in Margaretville, and Walgreens in Sidney, Delhi and Stamford are all registered vaccination sites. To schedule an appointment, visit cvs.com or Walgreens.com to set up an account and register for an appointment.

Currently there are no state run vaccination sites located in Delaware County, with the closest ones being located at SUNY Binghamton or SUNY Albany. People must register for appointments at these sites through the NYS DOH webpage <https://am-i-eligible.covid19vaccine.health.ny.gov/>.

The Delaware County BOS is encouraging every eligible Delaware County resident to seek an appointment to get vaccinated. They are also speaking with state and federal representatives on a regular basis expressing the need for vaccine in Delaware County to accommodate the population.

"We are committed to getting Delaware County fully reopened and back to some level of normalcy," BOS Chairwoman Tina Molé stated. "In the meantime please keep wearing face coverings when in public, practice social distancing and prepare to get vaccinated once you are eligible."

Industries hiring during the pandemic

The COVID-19 pandemic has had a devastating impact on the world. Data from Worldometer, which analyzes, validates and aggregates COVID-19 figures from around the globe, indicates that, by early February 2021, the virus had claimed more than 2.3 million lives and infected nearly 108 million people since it first began to spread in late 2019.

The human toll of the virus has been devastating, and many people also have felt the economic impact of the pandemic. It's difficult to determine a global unemployment rate, but sources including the International Monetary Fund and the World Economic Outlook Database have estimated that the unemployment rate in the United States by October 2020 was more than 5 percent higher than it was at the end of 2019. In Canada, the unemployment rate had reached 9.7 percent by October, which marked a roughly 4 percent increase compared to the end of 2019.

Though many people who lost their jobs during the pandemic remain out of work, certain industries have grown during the pandemic.

- Health care: The health care industry has been stretched thin during the pandemic, and that's led to increased opportunities. In addition, industry forecasters have long pointed to a potential nursing shortage in the years to come. For example, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that as many as two million nurses are expected to retire by 2022. Those figures should lead to even more opportunities in a profession that is already facing a shortage of qualified candidates.

- Technology: Many businesses transitioned to remote work during the pandemic, and that's created opportunities for skilled technology professionals capable of facilitating such transitions. Recruiting industry professionals note that such positions may be offered on a contract-only basis, particularly by companies that ultimately want to return to in-office work after the pandemic has ended. However, some companies have extended their work-from-home policies into fall 2021, and some, including Google, have announced plans to support remote work indefinitely. So demand for skilled technology workers capable of helping companies run remotely could very well continue even after the economy has recovered from the pandemic.

- E-commerce: The e-commerce industry did not need the pandemic to give it a boost. But e-commerce has certainly been relied on more heavily in the wake of social distancing restrictions and overall consumer hesitancy about in person shopping. Professionals with experience in web development and e-commerce may find their skills are in need, while online retailers like Amazon may be in need of workers to help with fulfillment and logistics.

Though the economic impact of the COVID-19 pandemic has been devastating, various industries have a need for qualified professionals.

Floodway Encroachment and No-Rise Certification Workshop a Success

New landowners may not be aware that before any new structures can be built in floodways, they must prove there will be no resulting rise in flood elevations. Anyone looking to build in a floodway must provide local building departments with plans and engineering models that prove no rise will occur. Without this, the project cannot move forward.

Floodways are the portion of floodplains closest to streams and contain swifter, deeper, and more dangerous flows during a flood. When streams are at low flow, floodways appear to be attractive areas for building or living - who doesn't want to hear a babbling brook from their patio? Yet floodways can be deadly and dangerous during high flows, or at minimum the site of significant and costly property damage. Generally, builders and landowners are advised to avoid putting structures in floodways. However, some are willing to risk it and local building departments do receive applications for construction in floodways.

The Ashokan Watershed Stream Management Program (AWSMP) recently hosted a successful three-day workshop on the topic of Floodway Encroachment and No-Rise Certifications. The workshop was held entirely online over three separate weeks in February and was attended by 54 local municipal officials, engineers, and agency representatives. Code enforcement officers, certified floodplain managers, and professional engineers received continuing education credit for attendance.

James Woidt of J.L. Woidt Engineering, one of several consultants who delivered the program, said that "The regulatory floodway is the portion of a watercourse that FEMA has mapped as conveying the most flood water. As small changes within the floodway could result in large increases in flood depths, proper management of the floodway is critical to managing flood damages in the community,"

Local Code Enforcement Officers and other officials learned more about federal regulations that require engineering analyses demonstrating new construction will not result in a rise in flood elevations. The workshop's goal was to help local officials and engineers better understand the often-complex engineering involved and how to properly review reports for accuracy.

Throughout the workshop, discussion centered around the need to thoroughly review project proposals and determine if the location was really the best place for a structure. Floodways are by their nature typically the most dangerous areas of the SFHA and where most of the destruction occurs during a flood. While technically feasible, instructors emphasized it is imperative that communities review each application and ensure these projects align with community plans.

Cornell Cooperative Extension of Ulster County (CCEUC) through the AWSMP organized the online event with the bulk of the program delivered by consultants with backgrounds in engineering and floodplain management. "We were pleased to have supported CCEUC with presenting a workshop on this important topic to help local communities understand the real-world application of local floodway regulations and provide practical tools to help communities manage development proposed within the floodway," said Woidt.

The AWSMP provides periodic technical trainings on stream and floodplain management topics every year. If you are interested in learning more about these and other educational opportunities available from the AWSMP, please visit our website at www.ashokanstreams.org. For more information on trainings offered outside the NYC Watershed, visit CCEUC's website at <http://ulster.cce.cornell.edu>.

The AWSMP's outreach activities are funded by the NYC Department of Environmental Protection.

HOROSCOPES

- ARIES - MAR 21/APR 20
 Concern about the plight of the less fortunate could be on your mind, Aries. You may have many questions about humanitarian issues and be wondering how to get involved.
- TAURUS - APR 21/MAY 21
 You normally are a very active person, Taurus. Figure out ways to channel that activity into something for the greater good — as well as something that can benefit you.
- GEMINI - MAY 22/JUN 21
 This week you will enjoy a break where you can relax and decompress for a change, Gemini. Maybe you can use it as an opportunity to be introspective and forward-thinking.
- CANCER - JUN 22/JUL 22
 Cancer, you enjoy caring for others and regularly put your needs aside to cater to friends and family. But this week you are the one who needs advice and help.
- LEO - JUL 23/AUG 23
 Try to find things that can keep you occupied at home while you wait for an appointment or spend a lot of time indoors, Leo. Home projects may be an option.
- VIRGO - AUG 24/SEPT 22
 Virgo, friends keep calling but you may not be in the mood to do the receiving. Don't isolate for too long, as support from others is important and beneficial.
- LIBRA - SEPT 23/OCT 23
 Do not fight the thoughts or feelings that are running through you this week, Libra. Some may not pan out, but something may come through that sets a new course for you.
- SCORPIO - OCT 24/NOV 22
 Sometimes you can be a bit vague when it comes to relationships, Scorpio. Be clear about your intentions if you are thinking of getting into a new relationship.
- SAGITTARIUS - NOV 23/DEC 21
 Learning how to read other people's emotions can help you learn to interact with and support those around you, Sagittarius. Practice your skills of perception.
- CAPRICORN - DEC 22/JAN 20
 Capricorn, even though you have a solid game plan in place, you may experience a few challenges along the way. Use these experiences to learn from your mistakes.
- AQUARIUS - JAN 21/FEB 18
 This week you may have a conversation with someone who opens your eyes to entirely new possibilities, Aquarius. Embrace this exciting time.
- PISCES - FEB 19/MAR 20
 Don't avoid conflict at all costs, Pisces. Rather, learn effective ways to face any and all events that come your way. You'll be more well-rounded.

DEC Announces Online Falconry, Wildlife Rehabilitator, and Leashed Tracking Dog Exams

The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) announced that examinations for individuals seeking a license to practice the sport of falconry, become a volunteer wildlife rehabilitator, or use leashed tracking dogs to find wounded or injured big game animals are scheduled for Friday, April 30.

To ensure access to the examinations, and prevent the spread of COVID-19, DEC is offering exams online this year instead of in-person. The exams will be available from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. on April 30. Registrants will have two hours to take each exam. To register for any of these exams, click on the exam registration link and follow the directions provided. An email will be sent acknowledging registration. Apprentice Falconry License Falconry has a rich history and tradition throughout the world and requires a significant commitment of time and effort. Apprentices are limited to possessing one bird, either an American kestrel or a red-tailed hawk. A falconry study guide and examination manual are available on the DEC website at no cost. The cost of a five-year falconry license is $40.

To qualify for the Apprentice Falconry license, applicants must:

- score 80 percent or higher on the written exam;
- be at least 14 years of age;
- possess a valid New York State hunting license; and
- maintain DEC-approved facilities for housing falconry raptors.

Wildlife Rehabilitator License Wildlife rehabilitators provide care for injured, sick, and orphaned wild animals for the purpose of returning rehabilitated animals to the wild. Prospective applicants are encouraged to gain experience by serving as an assistant to a licensed wildlife rehabilitator. A wildlife rehabilitator study guide and examination manual are available on the DEC website at no cost. There is no cost for the five-year wildlife rehabilitation license.

To qualify for the Wildlife Rehabilitator License, applicants must:

- score 80 percent or higher on the written exam;
- be at least 16 years of age; and
- be interviewed by DEC regional wildlife staff.

Leashed Tracking Dog Handler Leashed tracking dog handlers use their dogs to track and recover dead, wounded, or injured big game. Leashed tracking dog handlers provide a valuable service by aiding hunters in locating wounded big game that otherwise may go unrecovered. A leashed tracking dog study guide is available on the DEC website at no cost. There is a $50 license fee for the five-year leashed tracking dog license and a $25 non-refundable application fee.

To qualify for a Leashed Tracking Dog Handler License, applicants must:

- score 80 percent or higher on the written exam; and
- possess a valid New York State hunting license.

To register for these exams, visit the DEC Special Licenses Unit webpage. The link to the registration webpage is provided on each of the individual license webpages. For questions or assistance, please contact the Special Licenses Unit at: NYSDEC Special Licenses Unit, 625 Broadway, Albany, NY 12233-4752 Phone: 518-402-8985, Fax: 518-402-8925, Email: SpecialLicenses@dec.ny.gov.

House Passes Rep. Delgado-Backed Bipartisan VA VACCINE Act

This week, U.S. Representative Antonio Delgado (NY-19) joined Democrats and Republicans to help pass the VA VACCINE Act, which empowers the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) to offer COVID-19 vaccines to all veterans and their caregivers. Recently, members of Rep. Delgado's locally-based Veterans Advisory Committee highlighted the disparity in veteran vaccine eligibility at the VA and called for legislative action. Currently, the VA is only offering vaccines to veterans enrolled in VA healthcare. "This common-sense, bipartisan legislation would get shots in more veterans' arms," said Rep. Delgado. "I thank members of my Veterans Advisory Committee for informing me of regulatory barriers preventing veterans not currently enrolled in VA healthcare from receiving their vaccines. The House's swift introduction and passage of the VA VACCINE Act is a testament to our focus on supporting all those who served our country in uniform. I am calling on the Senate to pass this critical bill immediately." "This is tremendous news for veterans across the country, millions of whom who weren't previously eligible to be vaccinated," said Malia Du Mont, Chair of Rep. Delgado's NY-19 Advisory Committee on Veterans. "Now, thanks to the VA VACCINE Act, all veterans will be able to get COVID-19 vaccine shots at VA facilities. Here in the New York's 19th Congressional District, it will make a potentially life-saving difference for tens of thousands of veterans. As a veteran myself, I'm grateful for Congressman Delgado's continued leadership on these issues - he has prioritized supporting veterans from day one of being in office."

"Dutchess County's Veterans Services Department has been on the frontline assisting those in need since this crisis began almost a year ago to the day," said Adam Roche, Director for the Dutchess County Division of Veterans Services. "Making vaccinations more accessible for veterans in our community is critically important and the VA VACCINE Act takes a tremendous step forward in assisting that effort. When Dutchess County discovered that there was an income threshold for veterans seeking vaccination, we immediately sought to correct this issue. We thank Congressman Delgado for supporting this potentially life-saving legislation." The VA VACCINE Act will expand VA's authority so they can provide vaccines to:

 • Veterans who are not currently enrolled in VA's healthcare system, including veterans without compensable service-connected disabilities and veterans who have incomes above a certain threshold;
 • Caregivers of veterans who are enrolled in various VA home-based and long-term care programs; and
 • Veterans living abroad who rely on the Foreign Medical Program.
